

CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY AT A GLANCE

Introduction to Anthropology

Theory & Methods in Cultural Anthropology

Culture, Race, Ethnicity, and Racism

Sustaining Human Health and Well-being

Danza Azteca Chichimeca

CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY

PART OF THE ANTHROPOLOGY PROGRAM

ANTHRO 102 - Human Ways of Life: Cultural

Anthropology examines the human experience, past, present, and future. Students learn how people in different parts of the world obtain food, exchange goods, organize themselves, marry, raise children, gain power, worship, and go to war. The class begins with the colonial history of anthropology and how the field, with its early ethnocentric models and unethical practices, contributed to the subtle destruction of "other" Indigenous peoples. The class emphasizes how anthropology can help address modern social, political, and environmental issues threatening the human body and fundamental human rights. The class challenges students to reflect on themselves critically and ask how they contribute to their communities' health and well-being.

Contact Information:

Professor Garcia / garciasa4@lattc.edu

REGISTER NOW!

SEE THE CLASS SCHEDULE FOR CURRENT OFFERINGS.

All anthropology courses meet transfer and degree requirements.